Case - Timothy N. Pfeiffer,
Subject - Homicide, New Brunswick, N.J.,
Operative - 124.

Mr. Whittaker, was a plow-maker, then later on became a barber, and eventually worked in the potteries, and at one time made good money, and was buying a row of houses on Bank St., Trenton, N.J., but that when he got to be about 32 to 35 years of age he started drinking very heavily, and thereafter was almost always drunk.

Mrs. Harry Whittaker said that she knew Mrs. Easton very well, but that Mrs. Easton had no use for her for the fact that at one time there was a farm to let out opposite the Municipal Hospital, and that Mrs. Easton wanted to rent this farm and have Harry Whittaker and his wife run it for her. Mrs. Harry Whittaker said that the reason she did not run this farm for Mrs. Easton was that Mrs. Easton was too bossy and domineering.

Operative learned from Mrs. Harry Whittaker that while old Mrs. Whittaker was dying with consumption, Mrs. Easton made an effort to buy from her (Mrs. Harry Whittaker) the insurance policy which she had on old Mrs. Whittaker. Mrs. Harry Whittaker said that old Mr. Easton was always drunk and just done a little work around the second-hand furniture shop.

Mrs. Harry Whittaker told Operative that it was just like Mrs. Easton to be out riding at night on a mule, as when she was in Trenton, she was out doing the same thing, always out spying on somebody, and imagining someone was stealing something from her.

It seems that while Mrs. Easton was living at #336 South Broad St., Trenton, N.J., there was a Mrs. Serena, alias "Salvation Anne" living in the first house on Overlook Avenue, White City Park, Trenton, N.J., and that upon hearing Mrs. Harry Whittaker mention the name of Easton, said, "Why that is my sister." A short time after the above mentioned remark was made Mrs. Easton and Mrs. Serena met in the presence of Mrs. Harry Whittaker - At that time Mrs. Easton openly denied that she was the sister of Mrs. Serena.
